The Commission on the Status of Women,

Alarmed by the increasing number of domestic femicides worldwide,

Acknowledging the violence women all over the world are experiencing,

Deeply concerned by the inability of women to seek help out of fear of their abusers,

Bearing in mind the decline of victim's mental state after each incident,

Taking into consideration the already existing reforms,

1. Urges all member states to implement national education reform programs to address the main cause of our issue, the mentality of our populations, such as, but not limited to:
 - a. Compulsory sexual programs taking into account each regions problems on:
 - i. gender equality,
 - ii. sexual consent,
 - b. Compulsory educational programs on:
 - i. women's achievements in history,
 - ii. the work society put into gender equality so far,
 - iii. what women had to endure in the past and currently endure in developing countries,
 - c. The introduction of literature depicting:
 - i. post apocalyptic, dystopian worlds where women's rights are heavily oppressed, threatening the fall of our entire civilisation,
 - ii. a balanced and modern version of masculinity not found in opposition to femininity,
 - iii. theoretical manifestos of universal writers about gender equality,

- d. Funding moderate churches that present religion in an objective, modern and positive manner to eliminate theocratic extremism,
 - e. Propagating in the academic environment the idea that women aren't vulnerable and in constant need of protection;
2. Recommends all nations to establish shelters for women and children in endangered situations which have suffered any type of signs of domestic abuse composed of:
- a. safe zones for women and children which implies housing and offering basic needs such as:
 - i. nutrition,
 - ii. child supplies,
 - iii. clothing,
 - b. medical support such as:
 - i. prenatal checkups,
 - ii. mental health trauma support for victims,
 - iii. designated abuse treatment,
 - iv. designated trauma support and specialized pediatric support for accompanying children,
 - c. legal support for instance:
 - i. offering legal counsel to assist in filling protective orders,
 - ii. help in fighting for custody in familial situations,
 - d. vocational training programs for helping women gain financial independence;
3. Suggests the implementation of an international hotline which allows women to safely and easily get in contact with specialists in order to be able to securely get help from organizations with the purpose of escaping the threatening environment, a program which we can support through means such as, but not limited to:
- a. Training:
 - i. female volunteers,
 - ii. formerly abused women, who we can legally employ and financially support,
 - b. Allocating a part of the UN budget to propagating this hotline through the following channels:
 - i. Social media posts made by known public figures,
 - ii. A main channel creating impactful social media posts while communicating its goals to the main online platforms, allowing the override of the algorithm, this way ensuring the posts reach a larger audience,
 - iii. Printing posters and putting them up in spaces such as clubs', airports', gas stations' bathrooms,
 - iv. Setting up radio and television informative advertisements;
4. Calls upon every member state to adopt immediate alerting systems and programs, for instance:

- a. helping victims with easy digital mechanisms to alert authorities in case of an emergency,
 - i. developing or/and adopting safety apps with features such as but not limited to: rapid alerting users contact list as well as authorities, real-time geolocation, record in real time in case of needing evidence,
 - ii. Encouraging the use of such apps/digital means by promoting mentioned apps in awareness campaigns, schools and law enforcement departments,
 - iii. Putting effective precautions to prevent misuse of the app by ensuring secure and accessible verification systems that prioritize user safety and privacy through police stations and women only public places, being offered to females in need,
 - b. alerting the authorities through physical items such as:
 - i. jewelry with “panic buttons” attached on the back to send the victim’s live location to emergency contacts and to inform law enforcements through audio recordings,
 - ii. upgraded smart watches and rings to support alerting systems for each owner in order for dispatchers to help and reach out to possible victims,
 - iii. actual buttons put up in women-only public spaces such as washrooms, locker rooms etc, where women can safely send out emergency notifications to nearby security officers;
- 5. Encourages all member states to support multi-platforms awareness campaigns against domestic violence led by experts in the field, aiming at:
 - a. Recognizing the early signs of the different types of abuse including:
 - i. Physical violence,
 - ii. Psychological violence,
 - iii. Manipulation techniques,
 - iv. Sexual violence,
 - v. Financial/material abuse,
 - b. Providing information on national hotlines and support services that include:

 - c. Police station;
11. Calls upon the improvement of the judiciary framework in regards to how it approaches cases of domestic abuse, femicides, harassment and all other forms of aggression towards women by:
 - a. reinstating the compulsory requirements for a case to be brought forward to the courtroom, whilst remaining committed to respecting the prospective victim's stance;

- b. designating specific judiciary institutions with carrying out the proceedings for trial in view of restoring domestic violence victims' integrity by:
 - i. implementing a differentiated commission within the Court of Civil Jurisdiction by a higher institution such as, but not limited to, national High Courts of Cassation and Justice, Supreme Courts and judges' councils, that is responsible with distinguishing between cases which are to be addressed and those which are not,
 - ii. establishing a commission that is mandated to archive filed cases which have gone on to be disputed in court or not,
 - iii. simultaneously tasking the commission enlisted above with notifying bodies of law enforcement at the recurrence of cases that are disregarded, in order for them to be aware of the fact that they are to oversee the case more thoroughly so that the prosecution has all the data required for establishing reasonable grounds of suspicion,
 - iv. providing coordinated support services for victims, including legal and psychological assistance,
- c. providing adequate representation for victims of domestic abuse, indifferent to the survivor's social and economic background,
- d. organizing different platforms for training youngsters in university education related to law, as well as for those who are actively performing this immense service, to learn more about the status of women and how to respond effectively and sensitively to victims in need of assistance, limiting the use of self-induced intoxication as a mitigating factor in criminal responsibility in order to:
 - i. ensure accountability for offenders regardless of substance use (drugs or alcohol),
 - ii. prevent perpetrators of domestic violence from evading appropriate legal consequences,
- e. proposing the adoption of a comprehensive law criminalizing all forms of violence against women and girls that explicitly addresses domestic violence, marital rape and crimes committed in the name of so-called "honour", and introducing legislation that protects women and girls from all forms of violence, offering mitigating circumstances for women accused of a crime on account of self defence;

12. Encourages the development and implementation of rehabilitation programs in correctional facilities for individuals convicted of domestic abuse, including gender-based violence and femicide, with the aim of promoting behavioral reform by:
 - a. Recommending the introduction of structured educational and counseling programs focusing on anger management, non-violent conflict resolution, and respect within family and societal structures,
 - b. Calling upon member states to ensure the involvement of qualified professionals, including psychologists and social workers, in the design and delivery of such programs,

- c. Proclaiming the importance of aligning rehabilitation efforts with national legal frameworks and broader public security objectives,
- d. Supporting the allocation of state resources to ensure the consistent implementation and monitoring of these programs in correctional institutions;
- e. Encouraging the establishment of post-release support mechanisms to assist reintegration into society,
- f. Recommending periodic evaluation of program effectiveness to ensure measurable progress in reducing repeat offenses;

13. Encourages neighbors to make an intervention in case of suspecting domestic violence, by:

- a. immediately making announcements and reporting to the local authorities,
- b. supporting victims by providing information on available helplines and protection companies and services,
- c. keeping informed about the better recognition of the signs of abuse,
- d. supporting the establishment of a direct community line system that connects neighbors to local enforcement for rapid reporting of domestic violence by:
 - i. ensuring these channels are simple and effective,
